UTIs Cause Unusual Behavioral Symptoms in Elders

Seniors with urinary tract infections usually don't exhibit the textbook symptoms that younger people do. Instead, confusion and sudden changes in behavior can be the tell-tale signs of a UTI. Read More »

Should You Convince Your Aging Parents to Move Closer to You?

Long-distance caregiving is challenging, but so is convincing Mom and Dad to relocate so they're closer to family. How do you know if you are making the right decision? Read More »

How to Handle "Thrifty" Elderly Relatives

Most caregivers wish their aging loved ones were more financially responsible, but some seniors are frugal to a fault. In fact, excessive penny-pinching can be downright frustrating when trying to ensure an elder's health and happiness. Read More »

Dementia Patients and Their Hurtful Lies

Memory loss is a hallmark of Alzheimer's disease and other dementias, but neurological damage can also cause patients to make up stories and false accusations. The latter symptom is upsetting for caregivers, who are often the targets of these behaviors. Read More »
